

Michael Pulliam

March 10, 1972 - February 6, 2015

On February 6th 2015, Michael Pulliam, of Mableton, GA, passed away after suffering a severe stroke. He was 42 years old. Mike was born on March 10th 1972, in Decatur, Illinois, to Elby Pulliam & the late Jo Pulliam. Soon after he was born, he and his family moved to Germany where his sister, Lori Pulliam, was born.

Much of Mike's education occurred in Smyrna Georgia, where he attended Campbell High School. Mike never married or had any children but is survived by his father, Elby, his sister, Lori, & her son Jeremy, who all miss him dearly.

Mike was an avid music fanatic. His vast knowledge of the history of rock music and especially the local Atlanta music scene was built around the many THOUSANDS of concerts he attended over the past 30 years. He was friends with & fans of many of the popular musicians who will surely feel the void left by his passing.

He was a very quiet, gentle, & kind soul who was always happier listening, rather than speaking. The only time he was outspoken about anything was when he was discussing music. He was very opinionated, in that regard. "To know what you love, you gotta know what sucks", was one of his notorious proclamations.

Mike will not be having any services as he was never one to bother or burden anyone. Instead, his ashes will be split & cast into the ocean, in Charleston, and scattered on the front rows of music venues and concert halls all over the Southeast. In lieu of flowers, his wishes were for donations to be made to Nuci's Space, a foundation to help uninsured musicians.
